LACO ASSOCIATES HIRES GENERAL MANAGER

LACO Associates, the Northern California-based consulting engineering corporation, welcomes John Bergenske to the staff as general manager. As general manager with LACO, Bergenske's role will be instrumental in further developing the company's process and business development infrastructure as he directs business operations that support LACO's civil, geological and environmental service operations.

"I am passionate about this opportunity with LACO, as there is an amazing base of talent here," Bergenske said. "This talent combined with the obvious ambition of the staff and the objectives of LACO provide an excellent foundation for future growth, both locally and regionally."

Prior to his appointment with LACO, Bergenske served as the vice president of project management and construction with Danco Group of Companies and also as the director of project development for Yakima Products, both of Arcata. He holds degrees in industrial technology and business from Humboldt State University.

"John's background and accomplishments produce an ideal fit for growing our management team and company," said Leonard Osborne, president and principal engineer of LACO Associates. "We are excited about the opportunities that John brings, both internally and for our clients. Optimizing our internal operations will reduce expense, thereby providing more cost-effective solutions for our clients."
